

2005 Official Scorer's Essay

Wichita, Kansas, Aug. 11 and 15, 2005

Behind the recent Hap Dumont Award winner...

Are a number of people who have helped with the scoring and provided support over the past 22 years that this writer has kept score and collated statistics in the NBC World Series. So, to begin this essay, this writer salutes the yeoman efforts of Ben Brown (who worked 20 hours that one Saturday in Baseball 'Round the Clock), Aaron McCullum (these two kept the TAS Live going at Lawrence-Dumont Stadium), Gary Goad, Rick Masters and Larry Shirk.

In addition to Jerry Taylor, Josh Robertson and Eric Edelstein, this writer acknowledges the support given by Steve Shaad, Larry Davis, Dian Overaker, Derik Dukes, Tony Jimenez (who I worked with in 1984), Lance Deckinger, Ted Woodward, and Rix Potlock (who nudged me from using spreadsheets to The Automated ScoreBook). Thank you all for your help, as I could not have done it for this long without you.

Annual survey of run rules

This writer has logged games that would have been called under the 6-run lead after seven innings rule, as well as an 8-run lead after five innings rule, believing that the current 10-run lead after five rule did not help tournament games move along. A perfect example the time savings under either or both of these rules was the Aug. 11 quarterfinal between Southern Cal Fire and Clarinda. Southern Cal never did attain the 10-run lead after five innings, but did hold a 9-0 lead after the fifth and sixth innings, a 9-1 lead after the seven and a 9-2 lead after the eighth. Any of those leads under those rules would have caused the game to be declared complete, and would have moved the 4:38 rain delay to complete the game to after that game (saving an estimated 45 minutes for finishing the game and a second field prep afterward)

Eleven games would have been called under the 8-run rule, with two bringing the game to an earlier close than under the 10-run rule. Of those, only in two cases did the losing team cut into the lead, but the most runs taken off was two. Of the 19 games that would have been ended by the 6-run rule, two would have been terminated earlier than the 10-run lead. Only in one case did the losing team cut into the lead but the 6-run rule would still have been invoked.

Tournament Statistics

The 2005 NBC World Series reversed a trend of declining batting averages with a seven-point increase over last year (.263 to .256). Home runs per game fell somewhat (.57 from 2004 to .43), but runs per game remained constant, while hits showed a slight increase. With eight fewer games than last year (one game was forfeited and discarded from the averages), raw offensive numbers were lower than last year.

Five teams batted over .300, an increase of two from last year. However, only Hays KS (.314) finished as high as 13th. On the other end of the spectrum, seven teams hit under .200 (same as in 2004), but the Wichita Sluggers carried the dubious distinction of not reaching .100, batting .073 as a team, and were shut out in both of its games, something the Las Vegas Lightning did in 1999, when metal bats still ruled the tournament.

Hilltopping

The tournament ERA was under 4.00 for the third year in a row (and four of the past five), falling one point to 3.95. Only two teams had an ERA under 2.00, led by Aloha's 1.43, while six others had an ERA under 3.00. No team had an ERA over 9.00, which is a first, with Austin TX Gold Sox having the worst at 8.31. There were six fewer shutouts than last year, and a wood-era low of 13 complete games.

Fielding gems and rocks

Fielding in the 2005 NBC World Series saw slight declines from last year in fielding average (.954, down 2 points), double plays (1.59, down 3) and a slight increase in errors (3.45, up .05).

Plaza Tire (Cape Girardeau) MO had the fewest errors with two, but played only two games. Fielding champion Seattle (.982) was one of several teams with four errors, and led in double plays with 10. Seven teams (same total as 2004), were charged with more than 10 errors, led by Prairie Gravel and Fairbanks with 15 each.

There were four errorless games in the tournament: #11 Pueblo-Newton, #72 El Dorado-Pueblo, #80 Prairie Gravel-Seattle and #82 Prairie Gravel-Santa Barbara. No game had 10 errors, with the high being eight (Austin Gold Sox was charged with six in one game).

Outstanding mound work

There was one five-inning one-hitter (San Diego 14, Crestwood 1), and six two-hit games. One of the latter as Seattle-Aloha, in which the Studs scored six runs in the ninth on one hit.

Alessandro Francisco (Santa Barbara) had the longest string of inning without an earned run (21), but gave up three in his 22nd inning of work. Branden Dewing (Maxim) finished with 10 innings without an earned run, while six pitchers allowed only one run. Tomm Hanson of Aloha had the longest run with 16 (and struck out a tournament-high 27 hitters), while Clay Johnson of Seattle (12.1 IP) struck out 15 and walked none.

Game times

Average game times this year was 2:19, a five-minute increase from last year and the longest average time since 2000:

Only two games took more than three hours to play (one was a 13-inning game, the other was Maxim 8, Dallas Buffalo 6 at Robertson Field). Games at Robertson were nine minutes longer than average (17 minutes longer than at Lawrence-Dumont.). This year was the first time that the largest percentage of games was in the 2:15-2:29 time block

Margin of victory

The NBC World Series margin of victory was 4.37, almost the same as last year. Sixteen games were settled by one run, 15 by two and 12 by three. Just seven games were decided by 10 or more runs. The 11 games at Robertson Field were somewhat closer at 3.82. Winning teams averaged 7.13 runs, while defeated teams averaged 2.77.

Home Run Analysis

With 35 home runs, one had to be in the right place at the right time to see a ball leave the yard in fair territory (on the other hand, countless baseballs left the park in foul ground). Grand slams were hit by El Dorado's Eric Farris, Maxim's Jimmy Van Ostrand, and Fairbanks' Matt Inouye

Robertson II

Played considerably livelier than at Lawrence-Dumont (.289 at Robertson to .259 at L-D), and the pitchers paid for it (4.81 ERA at Robertson, 3.81 at L-D). However, it didn't translate in much of a gain in run production (5.55 to 4.86)

Multi-State League

With four of the five replacement teams from Kansas (last year, there were two such substitutes), the Sunflower State grew to a record 10 teams. California maintained the same number of entries with eight. Wichita, once again, had five teams, and fared a little better than last year, winning five games as a group compared to four last year. The Braves won two games (to tie with the Titans), but improved their standing to 13th. Park City's 5-2 record gained the Cowboys a spot in the top eight, but Dodge City could only manage 17th despite a 3-2 mark.
